Flint Symphonic Wind Ensemble, Biography

Our organization came into being in March of 1966 as "The Flint Civic Wind Ensemble", organized by Donald C. Clough and sponsored by the Flint Community Music Association (the parent organization of the Flint Symphony Orchestra at the time). Our name changed to "Flint Symphonic Wind Ensemble" in 1984 and we received official non-profit status in 1999.

The mission of the Flint Symphonic Wind Ensemble (FSWE) is:

- To provide musical access to both practice and performance for adult musicians and
- To provide musical education and entertainment for the community.

The FSWE rehearses on Tuesday evenings during the school year at Carman-Ainsworth High School, allowing an opportunity for area adult musicians to practice their music with other adult musicians and to enhance their knowledge and appreciate of instrumental music. Six to ten concert performances are offered to the Greater Flint Area public during each year, providing an opportunity for the community to enjoy instrumental music by seasoned musicians and to increase music appreciation. Some of these concerts are in high and/or middle schools, with student musicians joining the FSWE members in performing.

The 2011-12 season of the FSWE featured several exciting guest artists, including Richard Stoelzel and the Grand Valley State University Trumpet Ensemble, "Exclamation!" Percussion Ensemble (Delaina Oberman, director), and "The Steelheads" Steel Drum Band from Mott Community College (James Coviak, director). The FSWE was also honored with an invitation to perform in the prestigious Motor City Festival of Community Bands, hosted by the Motor City Brass Band in Dearborn, Michigan. In our current season, we featured "Celebration Brass" quintet and world-renowned jazz clarinetist Dave Bennett. Our April concert will feature oboist Nancy King from The University of Michigan.
